SPONTANEOUS MOVE TO DRAFT TAFT AND DEWEY IS REPORTED

Convention To Convene This Afternoon To Consider Anti-War Platform

NOMINATIONS SHORTLY

Managers for Taft, Dewey and Willkie See No Threats To Their Campaigns

By William K. Hutchinson
L. N. S. Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, June 26—(INS)—A spontaneous move to draft Taft and Dewey spread today among delegates to the Republican National Convention, as they prepared to approve a decisive anti-war platform before listening to nominating speeches.

The movement for a Robert A. Taft—Thomas E. Dewey ticket came from the unbossed delegates who are dead-set against the nomination of Wendell Willkie—and they may act on their own initiative from the floor of the convention if the coalition is not offered them shortly.

Managers of the Taft, Dewey and Willkie camps meanwhile saw no threats to their campaigns in the convention appearance of former president Herbert Hoover. The ex-president came, was seen, but failed to conquer.

His visit had been heralded by his friends as affording an opportunity to stampede the convention to his re-nomination. Actually, Hoover impressed his audience as a tired veteran statesman. He was given several ovations and his speech an excellent reception, but it created no demand to draft him.

Many delegates thought Hoover made the greatest speech of his career, so far as the words he uttered were evaluated. But these same delegates observed that his delivery fell far short of that night in Cleveland four years ago when he brought another convention to its feet time and again, cheering madly. He might have had a nomination that night, but 1940 will pass him by.

British Land On "Enemy Coastline"

London, June 26—British landings by sea and air on the "enemy coastline" were announced today as hundreds of German bombing planes carried out a series of raids against the British Isles.

Four persons were killed and 13 injured in the Nazi raids last night.

An official communiqué disclosed the new British offensive operations said:

"In co-operation with the Royal Air Force, naval and military raiders yesterday carried out successful reconnaissances of the enemy coastline.

"Landings were effected at a number of points, contact made with German troops and casualties inflicted.

"Some enemy dead fell into our hands and much useful information was obtained. Our forces suffered no casualties."

The communiqué did not disclose where the landings were made or how many were involved. Nor did it state whether any landing parties were left in German-controlled territory or whether the British returned home when their mission was completed.

Ford Refuses To Make Engines For Great Britain

Washington, D. C., June 26—Negotiations between the National Defense Council and several automobile manufacturers for the production of British Rolls-Royce airplane engines were in progress today following Henry Ford's refusal to turn out these power plants for England's fighting planes.

The council had sought to have produced 6,000 of the Rolls-Royce engines for the Allied Purchasing Commission, and an additional 3,200 to 4,000 for the U. S. Government. The Ford Motor Company was to have produced them.

Ford informed the council that his organization is willing to make the engines for the U. S., but would not produce them for the Allied Purchasing Commission. The latter organization is taking over all French munitions orders in this country.

Ford's refusal to produce the engines for Great Britain prompted the defense group to look elsewhere.

Although officials declined to specify what the other sources are, it is known that conversations between various automobile firms and the government have been carried out recently.

Report Japanese Threats

Washington, June 26—As Japanese political threats to assume a "protectorate" over French and Dutch possessions in the Far East were intensified today, the U. S. Battle Fleet was reported en route from Hawaii to an unknown destination.

What connection there is between these two facts was a matter of deep official secrecy. Officials flatly refused to give any information on the destination or purpose of the fleet movement.

TOKYO, June 26—Japanese forces in Southwest China have launched a drive to control the vital supply routes between French Indo-China and China itself, it was revealed today.

While the Foreign Office denied dispatch of "observers" to the French colony, constituted a move to secure a Japanese protectorate over the Netherlands East Indies, Domel news agency reported the troop movements.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

Two Hares and A Tortoise

Philadelphia, June 25. SO FAR AS the nomination is concerned, the Republican situation here is still so cloudy that any forecast is a mere guess and every prediction based on wishful thinking. The leaderless, not to say irresponsible, character of the convention persists, which is as attractive from one point of view as it is appalling from another.

THIS STATE of affairs will continue until the successful aspirant is definitely known. The moment that happens, his friends take charge and it is no longer an unbossed assemblage. However we are a considerable distance from

4-H GIRLS OF COUNTY ARE AT CAMP ARCOLA

Miss Edna Stephany, Home Economics Representative, Accompanies Them

42 GO FROM BUCKS CO.

Members of 4-H clubs in Bucks County, totalling 42 girls, are now located at Camp Arcola, near Collegeville, where the group will remain until Friday under supervision of the Bucks County home economics representative, Miss Edna Stephany.

The Bucks County 4-H Club girls are attending the camp with a group of Chester County 4-H Club girls.

The girls are taking part in organized sports, crafts, swimming, boating, and a camp fire program held every evening.

Several nature hikes have been planned, and a scavenger hunt and folk dance festivals will round out the program of gaiety.

One of the most unique bit of entertainment will be a "wandering theatre" which means that one act of the play will be given at one place in the camp, and then the girls will stroll to the next spot where the second act will be presented, and the third act will be given at another point on the campsite.

The name of the play this Summer will be "Wild Nell of the Prairies."

Visiting hours are any time until 9 o'clock in the evening when the girls are expected to go to bed.

Because the camp is a Y. M. C. A. site, the girls will sleep in small buildings and not in tents, affording them more protection and comfort.

The Bucks County girls who are attending are:

Mary Assal, Andrea Anderson, Alice Angeny, Grace Bauman, Faye Clymer, Dorothy Cole, Ruth Crouthamel, Margaret Cole, Helen Epler, Arlene Godshall, Lorraine Hinkle, Doris High, Elmore Horn, Dorothy Husberger, Bettie Heuckroth, Jeanette Lewis, Carolyn Lloyd and Betty Lownes.

BLASTING THE NEW DEAL

Former President Herbert Hoover took the Republican convention out of its collective seats when he blasted the New Deal and severely rapped the administration for what he termed its trend to totalitarianism. Hoover is shown acknowledging the cheers of the assembled delegates in Philadelphia, smiling broadly as he looks at his notes.

Highlights of Hoover's Speech To Republican Convention

PHILADELPHIA, June 26—Highlights of the address of former President Hoover before the Republican National Convention last night follow:

If we are to keep cool and not stimulate war there must be an end to provocative speech by our officials. Expressions of indignation or regret do not require insults. The first responsibility of the President of the United States is to avert war, not stimulate it.

It is not the province of the President to create hate. Irresponsible talk in explosive times may bring danger.

Here and now America must summon reason to control emotions. The first policy of calm realism is not to exaggerate our immediate dangers.

The second policy in realism is competent preparedness. . . . Preparedness is not only making armies and navies. It must be supported by a sound national finance, national economy and a restored productivity of our people.

We are faced with mismanaged national defense.

New Deal politics will never "make tyranny tremble." I suppose we might frighten tyrants by appointing another hoard to advise the advisory committee of the council for national defense.

The hope of mankind and the hope of civilization is that democracy survive on this continent.

Truly we have been following the suicide road to liberty that led to disaster in Europe.

Republicans! You go into battle for the greatest cause entrusted to the government of mankind.

You can and you will hold aloft the lamp of liberty. Are you prepared to fight?

We are faced with the task of saving America for free men.

And you will hold aloft the lamp of liberty. Are you prepared to fight?

It all comes about because the Water Committee of the Borough Council says that those who are delinquent will have a dry time of it after tomorrow—the date after which water service will be discontinued to those who are delinquent in paying their water bills.

Some delinquents are evidently gambling on the idea that water service will not be discontinued.

The Water Committee says those who think that the water will not be turned off, as soon after tomorrow as possible, are gambling with the odds against them.

THE CAMPAIGN IS ON

Fears that the Presidential campaign might degenerate into a colorless affair lacking drive and punch, and suffering from inability to divert the attention of the populace from the war in Europe and its implications, have already proved unfounded. This campaign will be a scorcher.

Strangely, or fittingly—depending upon the viewpoint—the Presidential sweepstakes was given the starting gun by President Roosevelt when he appointed Messrs. Knox and Stimson to his cabinet. Republicans at once branded this as a political move intended to imply, on the eve of the Republican National Convention, that the Republican party was divided and that an important segment of it is in favor of Roosevelt for a third term.

If no politics was intended in the President's appointments, they were made at an inept time; if the political motive ascribed to the move by Republican leaders is correct, the reaction was the opposite of that which obviously must have been intended by the President.

Instead of bringing about "unity" in government, the Knox-Stimson appointments have solidified the Republican ranks and greatly increased, or made more vocal, opposition to the President's foreign policy in both parties.

Mr. Roosevelt has Mr. Knox and Mr. Stimson for whatever they as individuals can contribute to his administration, but in acquiring them he has alienated support of his own as well as in the Republican party. More than that, he has moved the Republican Convention into the headlines and made it certain that the campaign will not suffer from ennui.

THE DIFFERENCE

Winston Churchill's statement that British combat planes have been taking two enemy ships for one and upon occasion, notably at Dunkirk, three or four for one, points to a difference in warfare as between Germany and Britain which still persists despite the reverses which have come to the English.

That difference is Germany's carelessness of life in its hurried aggression and Britain's life saving measures in working for a prolongation of Hitler's attack and therefore his final defeat.

The Germans have some good planes and pilots, of course. But the British claim by the test of hostilities that their own are considerably better and that therefore the British air arm, though smaller, will outlast the Nazis.

Germany's method, according to report, is to have highly trained leaders of air squadrons with followers not so well trained and often mere boys. Thus Germany is able to put great numbers of planes into the air on the "follow the leader" plan. Britain's pilots are individually highly trained and in combat with Germany's less trained force show up better.

Whether this will counterbalance Germany's heavy advantage in numbers may be put to the final test a any time.

An excited Westerner declare that "the United States should hesitate no longer to shed its mantle of hypocrisy and take up arms against the tyrants of Europe." Everyone knows about the mantle and the tyrants, but where are there arms to take up? Maybe though this fellow meant to say charms.

The Great Game of Politics

his great speech, looms very large indeed—despite these things, most of the delegates are convinced that either Senator Taft or Mr. Willkie will be their nominee.

THE SITUATION is unlike any that can be recalled by one who has been attending national conventions since McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt were nominated in this city forty years ago. It somehow makes you think of the old fable of the tortoise and the hare. Last spring, in both the polls and the primaries, old tortoise Taft was passed by the leaping Dewey here, who seemed running away with the prize. Before this convention, however, tortoise Taft, plugging steadily along in his methodical way, had passed the Dewey hare and seemed well ahead of the serious competitors.

Suddenly from the rear there appeared another hare—the Willkie hare—a higher-leaping, faster-moving, stronger, altogether classier hare, running very fast and full of determination.

Fourth, is Senator Taft's cousin, David Ingalls, who has a natural aptitude for politics and unquestioned and unusual charm. Finally, there is Col. R. B. Effie Shannon Returns To Bucks County in "Kind Lady"

Effie Shannon, beloved veteran of a half century's standing in the American theatre, returns to the Bucks County Playhouse at New Hope, Monday night to star in the title role of the thrilling melodrama, "Kind Lady." Louis Calhern, who has been popular with audiences the first two weeks of the Summer season at New Hope, is co-starred with Miss Shannon in this recent New York success.

Effie Shannon won the affection of the Bucks County theatre-goers in the opening attraction when she appeared as the matriarch of the Cavendish clan in "The Royal Family." One of the great names of the stage, Miss Shannon has an enviable record. She has created more than 150 roles and her "Who's Who" reads like a history of the theatre's famous plays and players during the past five decades.

"Kind Lady," which is based on a popular story by Hugh Walpole, was dramatized by Edward Chodorov and enjoyed an enthusiastic reception on Broadway, where it was produced several years ago. It deals with a suave beggar who comes seeking a cup of tea at the "Kind Lady's" house one Christmas day and remains to discuss art with her, going over her valuable collection piece by piece. Several days later he appears with his strange wife and their child. The wife faints on the doorstep and the "Kind Lady" takes her in. The rest is a gripping story which builds to an effective and stirring climax.

Miss Shannon has won acclaim playing the title role in previous productions of this play. Louis Calhern enacts the ring leader of the ruthless band of scoundrels who try to encircle Miss Shannon. Morton L. Stevens, Hattie Stoddard, Florence Dunlap, Pat Worrall, Thomas Coley, Natalie Schafer, Mortimer Weldon and Eden Gray, a resident of the Delaware Valley who has been a favorite Broadway actress, round out the cast. Carter Blake is staging the production, which will be the third of the Summer at the Bucks County Playhouse. Edwin Schrubs has designed the setting for the Walpole thriller, showing the lavish interior of a London residence.

This week Lenore Ulric has been romping through the hilarious farce comedy, "Personal Appearance," with a star-studded cast helping her set the merry pace.

DIAMOND NINE HANDS A SURPRISE DEFEAT TO CROYDON

Helveston Turns The Tables
On The Y. M. A.

ALLOWS ONLY TWO HITS

Beautifully-Played Game Ends
With Score of 4 to 1

CORNWELLS, June 26—Joe Diamanti's Diamond team handed the Croydon Y. M. A. a surprise 4-1 defeat last evening on the Bensalem High School field.

It was "Ad" Helveston who turned the tables on the Y's boys. He limited them to but two hits, both singles. Only a pass to Oppman and a hit by McCue enabled the Croydon club to score its only run.

The tilt was a beautifully played game. Hal Snyder who started for the Y. M. A. did not finish and received assistance from Herm Pluma. The Diamond boys did not receive a safe hit off Pluma, getting their six and all their markers from Snyder. Pluma finished the fourth inning and the game.

Teddy Sak continued his hitting streak for the winners by collecting singles on his first two appearances at the plate.

It was the second defeat of the season for the Y's and cut their lead on first place to two full games. By virtue of the victory, Diamond went into a deadlock for third place.
